

The Most Advanced, Social and Digital Trading Platform

Problems of DEX Exchanges

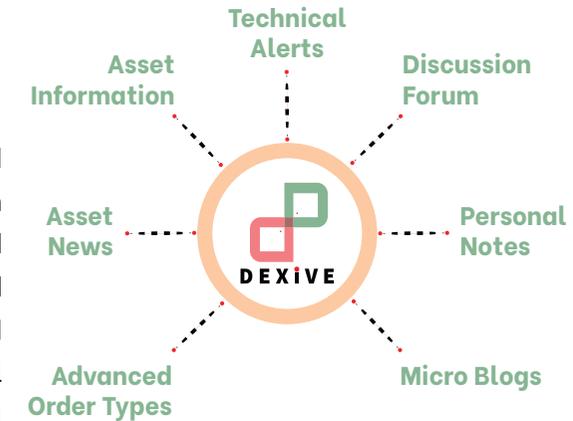

Most digital exchanges are centralized (custodial), with a high risk of hacks or government interventions. As a result, some users are migrating towards decentralized exchanges (DEX). DEXs, however, have shortcomings of their own. First, they lack enough liquidity to cover the demand for transactions. Also, their features, interface, and user experience is rather poor. Users can't find in current DEXs the tools they are looking for an integral crypto trading experience.

Dexive Exchange

Dexive keeps all the advantages of DEXs, while answering their shortcomings. Take any DEX in the market which integrates multiple blockchains. Add to it cross exchange trading, technical alerts, advance order types, asset info, and a full featured mobile app. Then attach asset market details, discussion forum, microblogs and a news portal. This is Dexive.

Dexive: Research and ecosystem

Dexive is not just a very advanced and reliable exchange, but it is also an ecosystem where knowledge and research will be the coin. Users will find both real-time information, and insightful knowledge about digital assets. With price alerts, users will know instantly when an asset reaches certain levels of volatility. And with microblogs, discussion forums, news portal and personal notes, they will have access to useful knowledge on specific assets.

IEO

Dexive is conducting an initial exchange offering (IEO), where the Dexive token (DXV) will be available for purchase. The DXV is a utility token, based in the ERC-20 standard, created to support the functions of the Dexive exchange platform. Their use will be to function as a means of payment for transactions performed in the network and the payment of transactions fees. The IEO public sale will be conducted during the beginning of 2020.

Overview

Dexive is a one window solution for day-to-day trading, that allows users to share and check the research on the go, as well as discuss individual assets with others in a uniquely interactive discussion forum.

It is also an ecosystem that provides all the tools necessary to make the right trading decisions at the right time: from the most advanced trading features, to a convenient space for info and knowledge sharing.
